

Second Annual Speaker Series Presents

Cannabinoid Medical Science and Political Ecology:

Psychoactive Substances and Mental Distress

Monday, April 21, 2014 | 5:30-7:00 pm

Humboldt State University, BSS 162 Native Forum

There is little information available describing the health-related quality of life of medical cannabis users. This presentation provides a portrait of chronic pain management in medical cannabis-using patients as well as their mental distress levels related to being targeted by drug law enforcement. Drawing on research conducted in Washington State, a political ecology of health framework is presented which can help inform our understanding of other contraband psychoactive biota of social and therapeutic import.

Sunil Kumar Aggarwal, M.D., Ph.D. is a Senior Resident in Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation at NYU Langone Medical Center. His research has been published in a wide range of medical and law related scholarly journals.
